Dr Ashish M. Kamat is an Tenured Professor and Attending Surgeon in the Department of Urology at M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston, TX. He is also the Director of the Urologic Oncology Fellowship Program. Dr Kamat's area of expertise is in urologic oncology. He has a special interest in bladder and prostate cancer with an emphasis on organ sparing therapies, minimally invasive techniques (e.g. robotic surgery) and orthotopic bladder substitution (neobladder). While he is a busy clinically active surgeon, he maintains an active research portfolio in order to improve the care of patients. In the clinical arena, in concert with efforts to develop novel therapies, Dr Kamat's efforts are directed towards identifying predictors of response to therapy, as a first step towards personalized cancer therapeutics. A major focus of his laboratory research is to develop novel therapies for bladder cancer using an approach which encompasses novel use of existing agents, the identification of novel targets and therapies, or a combination of these strategies. Dr Kamat has authored numerous editorials and over 200 publications in prestigious peer reviewed journals, serves on the editorial board of Expert Reviews in Anticancer Therapy and is listed in 'Who's Who in Medicine' and 'Best Doctors in America'. His basic, translational and clinical research is funded by peer-reviewed awards including from the National Cancer Institute. He serves as project PI on the MD Anderson Cancer Center GU (Bladder) SPORE, which is the only one of its kinds in the country. He has served on the NCI Bladder Cancer task force, on Grant Review Committees such as NIH-RO1 study sections as well as for international societies (Dutch Cancer Society and NIH - Singapore). Dr Kamat is an active member of the urologic community, and a graduate of the AUA Leadership Program. He is also active in many cancer support groups for patients such as the Bladder WebCafe and Bladder Cancer Advocacy Network (BCAN).
